1. Introduction

The field of Organizational Behavior (OB) is devoted to the study of how individuals relate in workplace and how groups and organizations affect their members. This course will introduce you to the central concepts, theories and frameworks in OB. The cases assigned will help you sharpen your skills in applying those theories and frameworks to analyze real management problems and develop appropriate solutions.

The course is divided into two major parts. The earlier part is “micro” in nature. We focus here on “individuals” in organizations. In the process, we will learn about individual differences in various aspects (e.g., personality, ability, motivation, creativity, perception, and value), and how to channel their effort and behavior in ways (e.g., learning, job design, appraisal, and pay system) that promote the achievement of organizational objectives and the well-being of the organizational members. The later part is more “macro” in nature, and deals with a variety of topics, including organizational structure, culture, ethics, work teams, leadership, power, politics, etc. We will here learn about how organizations can affect individual behaviors and discuss how to design organizations so that organizational members work together to achieve real synergies.

3. Class types and activities

I do not use a spoon-feeding teaching style. Learning in my class is based on collective action. You are required to complete the readings prior to class, contribute to the discussion of the material, and ask questions when you do not understand. You will learn from your classmates and help them learn. As an instructor, I am here to facilitate your mutual teaching and learning, not to give you “the answers.”

Active participation in discussions is expected, and your participation will be evaluated. While I recognize that, for some of you, speaking in class may be more difficult than for others, the role of class discussions is to encourage you to develop this skill. To help with that, I will call you on at any time.

WARNING: If you are uncomfortable or unwilling to participate and contribute to a joint-learning environment, you should consider taking another course (or taking this course with another instructor).
